ABSTRACT

The Floyd County Board of Education, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, was one of four Appalachian sites selected to demonstrate the coordination of library and adult education services under a subcontract from the Appalachian Adult Education Center, funded by the Bureau of Libraries and Learning Resources. The ABE-initiated coordination of services has, since September 1972, demonstrated the possibilities of service to rural disadvantaged under educated adults. The objectives designed to demonstrate such services led to: provision of bookmobile services to ABE centers, materials to ABE classes, community referral services through both agencies, student orientation to library use, mail delivery of requested materials, use of readers' profiles to determine student needs, home visits to prospective clients, and case studies of the effects of the project on the target group. The project has demonstrated how these objectives can be coordinated by ABE and a public library to provide personalized, expanded, and effective services to disadvantaged adults. (Appendixes to the report include a detailed list of project materials.) (Author)

ABSTRACT

The Floyd County Board of Education, Prestonsburg, Kentucky, was one of four Appalachian sites selected to demonstrate the coordination of library and adult education services under a subcontract from the Appalachian Adult Education Center, funded by the Bureau of Libraries and Learning Resources. The ABE-initiated coordination of services has, since September, 1971, demonstrated the possibilities of service to rural disadvantaged undereducated adults. The objectives designed to demonstrate such services led to: provision of bookmobile services to ABE centers, materials to ABE classes, community referral services through both agencies, student orientation to library use, mail delivery of requested materials, use of readers' profiles to determine student needs, home visits to prospective clients, and case studies of the effects of the project on the target group. The project has demonstrated how these objectives can be coordinated by ABE and a public library to provide personalized, expanded, and effective services to disadvantaged adults.

INTRODUCTION

The peoples of Appalachia are wealthier--socially, culturally, and educationally--for having had the Library-ABE Program. This is the consensus of opinion of all involved: Advisory Board, Project Director, Regional Librarian, ABE Personnel, and local citizens--as the Floyd County ABE-Library Project has been demonstrated. Evaluations have been made and accomplishments of the objectives have been determined. The results, as documented in this report, are more than gratifying.

The Library-ABE Project in Floyd County, Kentucky, developed into one of the most interesting, beneficial, and educational federally-funded programs provided for this area. The project, funded by the Bureau of Libraries and Learning Resources of the U.S. Office of Education, and supplemented by the Kentucky Department of Libraries, had the objective of providing materials that would encourage the ABE student's interest and help provide a well-rounded education, as well as develop the student's desire for continuing his education. This joint educational endeavor succeeded in providing an interested and informed staff and the availability of educational materials to accommodate the objectives.

The people of this area have become library-oriented by the people and the objectives of the project. Our patrons were made to feel that they were a special clientele for having our services--not just a part of a deprived society. The library has often been referred to as the "people's university." To our patrons, the bookmobile became a "storehouse of knowledge on wheels."

The most evident and perhaps the most gratifying result of the project is the changed attitude--relaxed, interested, and appreciative--of the project patrons in visiting the library. It is felt that the Library-ABE patrons will become permanent bookmobile and central library users. It is also anticipated that a continued educational interest will exist and our patrons will be more keenly aware of the value of obtaining an education, and will influence their families to do so.

The project director and project staff believe that the proper communication channels have been opened between the public library and adult basic education. (For documentation of coordination, see Appendix A, Letters from the State Departments of Education and Libraries.) It is already evident that the lives of approximately 765 families have been touched and are better for having been involved with the Floyd County, Kentucky, Library-ABE Project.

Listed below are the original objectives of the Floyd County Library-ABE Project, with detailed information about our long-range expectation for each, the progress we have achieved, and the handicaps that we encountered in achieving our goals.

OBJECTIVE 1: TO PROVIDE BOOKMOBILE SERVICES TO NINE ABE CENTERS.

Before the Library-ABE Program, ABE centers were not served by the bookmobile. Library facilities did not exist or were very limited at those rural centers. In the rural areas of Appalachia, most ABE students (largely housewives) have little contact with the outside world as most of us know it. Floyd County, for example, is made up of small mining communities, with seventy percent of the population "on the draw": social security, welfare, black lung, or some other kind of public assistance. Floyd County covers 402 square miles, so the central and only library is inaccessible to many rural residents who have no means of transportation, or who can't afford to drive the long distance to the library. Many roads in the county are in poor condition. One ABE class is fifty miles away from the library.

With this in mind this objective was given top priority.

The estimated total cost for this objective was $21,910. A breakdown of the cost is documented on the cost estimate schedule included in this report. (See Appendix B.)

Bookmobile services were provided at night to all Floyd County ABE centers. It is felt that through these services, the students, their families, and citizens of the rural communities around those centers have been library-oriented and will be permanent bookmobile and central library users.

Project staff aided in the increased interest in the use of the bookmobile through mini-interviews conducted to obtain pre-data for the bookmobile librarian on possible reading levels, interests, and needs of the prospective library patrons. This information was very important in the early stages of the program, but as the program progressed the bookmobile librarian was able to determine interests from talking with the students.

The bookmobile schedule was increased to accommodate eleven centers, instead of nine, with visits every two and a half weeks. The duration of each visit was three hours. The travelling library collection included adult and juvenile fiction, adult and juvenile non-fiction, adult and juvenile biographies, and coping skills materials. All these classifications were supplemented with books and pamphlets selected and purchased on special reading levels. These materials were recommended by adult educators for use with ABE students.

The patrons were afforded the pleasure of selecting materials from a new, air-conditioned bookmobile. The teen-age group of patrons enjoyed the portable stereo while making selections. The bookmobile librarian, aware that library impressions and patron attitudes were being formulated with each visit, strived to maintain a wholesome, informative and friendly atmosphere in pleasant surroundings. Seven hundred and sixty-five plastic permanent borrower's cards that could be used in the bookmobile and in the central library were issued. Of these, three hundred fifteen were to ABE students, four hundred fifty to community patrons. These cards were number-coded, so all library personnel were aware of the card and its relationship to the ABE project. This information was used in providing appropriate materials at the central library. The adults felt that the library card gave them something to have and to use--like a credit card.

A total of 4,950 books were loaned from the bookmobile during the project. Of this total, 3,990 are coping skills titles, listed in this report (Section III,D). The additional 960 were circulated at night from the regular collection that is used for our patrons during the day hours.

The end result of this objective was more than gratifying, as rural area circulations indicate. This year's circulation figures show a larger number of people reached and materials used. It is planned that service will continue to ABE centers, by bookmobile, for the following year. Assurances from the Kentucky Department of Libraries indicate that this is possible.

OBJECTIVE 2: TO PROVIDE OCCUPATIONAL INFORMATION

The intention of this objective was to provide the adult students with up-to-date occupational information about jobs available in the area. It was decided to pursue the feasibility of using the VIEW System (Vital Information for Education and Work) by purchasing a reader-printer and cards and installing the system on the bookmobile.

After investigating available information and contacting Richard Malcolm, ABE Area Coordinator in Huntington, West Virginia, for the prices and makes of reader printers, and costs of VIEW materials (microfiche), it was determined that the objective was not feasible for the following reasons: (1) the cost of up-dating the VIEW Deck cards for a two-year period; (2) lack of space for the reader printer on the bookmobile; (3) the total cost in relation to the importance of other objectives; (4) a continuous up-dating system has not been established in Kentucky, so expertise and cost would have to be carried by the library.

The other component of this objective was to use pamphlets and leaflets from various sources about job training and job opportunities, using the materials of the Kentucky Department of Vocational Education. These materials were made available to adults by constructing a pocket shelf rack on the front of the check-out counter of the bookmobile. Patrons could easily see and pick up these materials, which were free. This method proved to be very successful at a minimum cost. Probably fifty percent of the patrons returned the materials when they were through with them, even though they were free.

OBJECTIVE 3: TO DELIVER PRINT AND NONPRINT MATERIALS TO ABE PROGRAMS UPON REQUEST OF ABE STAFF

An orientation session was held with ABE teachers at the central library. During the session, background information on the project was explained carefully, especially the concepts of coping skills and the value of continuing education beyond ABE. Advantages to the ABE teacher and to his students were pointed out.

The ABE teachers were urged by the local ABE supervisor to include work in their curricula that would require the use of materials from the bookmobile or the central library.

The ABE teachers were asked to browse through material exhibited--on loan from the AAEC--and to discuss new material they knew of that was available. From the material displayed and from requests for new materials, the project staff could start selecting appropriate materials.

A System was explained to organize requests so materials would be available to teachers and students by the most expedient method. Teachers were requested to obtain print and nonprint materials from staff, bookmobile librarian, and/or the project librarian. Students were also encouraged to channel their requests through these people. The requests were filled by project staff or the project librarian through personal contact, telephone, or post card. The profile cards were invaluable in filling requests.

The cost estimate for this objective was $2,580. This includes salaries for planning by the director and staff, instructional materials that were selected as a result of the orientation session, and payment of the ABE teachers who attended the session.

A much more cooperative ABE teacher-library relationship now exists, and makes future cooperative efforts a certainty.

OBJECTIVE 4: TO PROVIDE COMMUNITY AGENCY REFERRAL SERVICES AS AN AID TO ABE STUDENTS THROUGH THE PUBLIC LIBRARY AND THE ABE CENTERS

The Community Services Handbook was structured to provide information on services provided by agencies in the community to help the adult students with problems like health, children, legal aid, etc. This was a very valuable service to the ABE students.

A copy of a handbook of available Floyd County services--adapted to the community from the model provided by the AAEC--was delivered to each ABE teacher, each staff member, and to the central library. The cost estimate for this objective was $775.00, including salaries and printing costs. The handbook will continue to be on file at the central library, and it is hoped that ABE teachers will continue to refer to the handbook to provide information to their students about community services.

An example of the kind of service made possible by this objective is the following story. A thirty-two year old woman with eight children, whose husband is on the Nelson Program (Happy Pappy), asked a staff member what she could do or where she could go to get birth control pills--she could not afford to buy them--her husband drank all their money. The staff member referred her to the Floyd County Health Department's Family Planning Program, and called the Health Department to tell them about the woman.

OBJECTIVE 5: TO PROVIDE LIBRARY ORIENTATION TO ABE STUDENTS TO ENCOURAGE LIBRARY USAGE

It was originally planned for the orientation to be three-phased: phase one to be a slide-tape presentation of library services, phases two and three to be two trips to the library for each ABE class. These phases were covered, but not in the planned order, since the slide-tape presentation was late in coming.

The visits to the library were cordial, as well as informative, with the library staff being present and refreshments served. Planned tours of the library facilities, discussion of the library system, viewing materials, a slide-tape presentation, and listening to taped book reviews by ABE students were items on the agenda. The cost estimate for this objective was $765.

This objective was very necessary. A very small percentage of students had ever been in a public library, and by visiting they formed a more favorable attitude toward libraries.

It was very evident on the second visit that the students were more relaxed and enjoyed this visit much more than the first library visit. During the first visit, students checked out seventeen books; during the second visit, forty-two books were loaned. Students were taken to the library on a school bus, with the project paying for the drivers and the gas.

The original purpose--to make the students aware of the services and materials available from the library, and that the library was a warm and friendly place--was accomplished.

OBJECTIVE 6: TO PROVIDE MAIL DELIVERY OF MATERIALS IN ANSWER TO REQUESTS

The estimated total cost of this objective was $1,250, the bulk of this being salaries for time involved in locating material and preparing it for delivery. The reference librarian reported that the response to mailed materials was excellent. The encouraging factor was that the majority of the requests were made by ABE students, and that nearly all requests were filled immediately. Because of the wide geographic scope of the project, approximately ninety-nine percent of all requests were mailed, with only a few being delivered by the staff or the bookmobile. The central library will continue to honor requests for printed material by mail.

The majority of requests by ABE students were for non-fiction materials. The collection on the bookmobile was primarily fiction, since that was the general demand of daily bookmobile patrons, although there were several requests for Victorian novels, which were widely read.

There were a few requests for records, but all others were for books The main interest seemed to center on health materials; epilepsy, VD, and health careers; especially in the field of nursing there was tremendous interest. (May be due to a new two-year nursing program becoming a part of the community college in the area.) Other interests in materials dealt with homemaking, sewing, quilting, knitting and canning; home maintenance, electrical wiring and carpentry; superstition and the supernatural; and auto mechanics.

In almost all instances the ABE requests were filled immediately and most always mailed, except when a particular book was on a waiting list or interlibrary loans were used.

OBJECTIVE 7: TO PROVIDE SPACE FOR AN ABE CLASS IN THE LIBRA

Data was to be collected to answer these questions: Do the A students like to have their class at the library? Are the students checking out more materials than they did in the past? Do the Library-ABE students check out more books than the students in ABE classes not held in the library?

Another reason for attempting to move an ABE class to the library was that the class was being held only two blocks away. But the ABE students felt comfortable where they were having their class and didn't want to change. It was noted that these particular students, before the beginning of the project, did not visit the library, but when they became aware of the library's services and materials, they did visit and use the library frequently. (See Objective 16: book reviews done by this class).

The ABE teacher was encouraged to use the library for class. We do not really know why she decided not to have the class in the library, other than the feeling of the students of not wanting to change. Library personnel and project staff strongly encouraged ABE classes to meet in the library whenever they desired.

OBJECTIVE 8: TO DEVELOP AND USE READERS' PROFILES

Reader profile cards were developed for each ABE student. The cost estimate for this objective was $595. The profile card gave the learner's reading level and interests, to enable the library project staff to provide him with the appropriate materials.

A bookmark, like those shown on the following page, was placed in each piece of material loaned to ABE library patrons, to get feedback from the materials. The percentage of bookmark responses was about fifteen percent. Most responses said they enjoyed the materials, most negative responses being that the material was too hard to read. When a response like this came back, library and project staff noted it and made adjustments to lower the reading level of materials given to that client.

OBJECTIVE 9: TO WEAVE LIBRARY TASKS INTO THE ABE CURRICULUM

Both the project director and the part-time librarian have driven the bookmobile in Floyd County for several years, and have taught elementary, secondary, and ABE classes in the county. As a result, they personally knew many of the target group--what they wanted and needed to read, their personalities, and family backgrounds. Thus, they could communicate with the ABE students and teachers personally to get good responses, good cooperation and understanding. This coordination can be on-going because of the personal relationships which the project has reinforced. With this as a backdrop, the introduction of library materials into the ABE curriculum was initiated. Results were the use of consumer education materials, both print and non-print, use of cyclo-teachers, coping skills, teaching machines in reading, math, English, and science, leisure reading, book talks, and occupational information. Book reviews by students were taped and shared with other ABE classes. Parttime staff, bookmobile, and central librarians mailed materials in response to frequent requests. (Appendix E is a sample request card.)

Before the project, library materials and services were not part of the ABE curriculum. At the end of the project, about twenty-five percent of all ABE class time was devoted to using library project materials. The cost for this objective was around $1,125. Most of the cost was for salaries.

OBJECTIVE 10: TO DEVELOP PRINT AND NONPRINT MATERIALS USING ABE STUDENTS' WORDS FOR CIRCULATION ON THE BOOKMOBILE.

This objective was to include folklore, tips on buying and credit, household hints, hints on how to move to an urban area for regular or seasonal employment. This objective will be developed in the next project year. It was replaced this year by emphasis on a similar objective 16, the development of book reviews by ABE students.

OBJECTIVE 11: TO MAKE HOME VISITS TO PROSPECTIVE ABE-LIBRARY CLIENTS

Two of the project staff were trained as recruiters and mounted an intensive study of the nature of ABE ~~and~~ library offerings in Floyd County. The two programs and their offerings were promoted in a door-to-door recruitment campaign. The recruiters were careful not to make claims for benefits from the programs that were unrealistic (Appalachians have been disappointed too many times, and are especially skeptical about new programs that claim too much.) It was not claimed, for example, that the Library-ABE Project would directly help clients get jobs, since there are few opportunities in Floyd County for training, and placement, and since ABE and the library could offer only limited information in these areas.

Approximately 550 home visits were made to solicit ABE-Library clients. The list of prospects for ABE was based on dropout records and other community information. It is hard to determine response to the recruitment in ABE, but there was a very noticeable increase in use of the bookmobile after the community was covered by the recruiters. The library benefited greatly from these visits. The citizens in rural areas were made aware of the value of library services.

Another significant result was that two additional ABE classes were recruited and begun, at least partially attributable to the community recruitment campaign, and that the retention rate of ABE students was fifty to sixty percent higher than in preceding years, which we feel is the result of increased awareness and interest in ABE brought about by the recruitment-promotion campaign, and by the improved services brought about through coordination with library services.

The part-time staff doing the recruiting filled out mini-interview sheets after they had left the home. (See Appendix F for example.) The expense of the objective was high--$9,765--but the rewards will be lasting. Most of the expense was for salaries for the recruiters.

OBJECTIVE 12: TO GATHER ABE TEACHER AND STUDENT OPINIONS OF THE SUCCESS OF THE METHODS DEVELOPED IN THIS PROJECT

The ABE teachers completed a questionnaire devised by the AAEC during their second meeting at the central library. (See Appendix G) It was quite evident that many teachers had changed their attitudes about the value of using public libraries in conjunction with their ABE classes.

Discussions were held on the types of materials that had been available during the year, and the teachers were enthusiastic about receiving the material they had requested at the orientation session. Probably the greatest reward of the objective was the teachers' acceptance of the fact that the public library can broaden the horizons of their students and increase the students' chances of educational success. The cost estimate for the objective was $860.00. Appendix H gives statements of teacher and student opinions of the value of the program.

OBJECTIVE 13: TO COORDINATE ALL LIBRARIES IN THE COUNTY WITH ABE

The project director visited all local school librarians and was assured accessibility of all collections to ABE students and staff. Followup visits indicate that school facilities were not used to a great extent, the bulk of library services and materials being provided by the Floyd County Public Library and Bookmobile, and the Kentucky Department of Libraries.

The observation by the project director is that the school libraries were still looked upon by the ABE students as being for children. They were hesitant to use those materials so the strategy was to strengthen the services of the bookmobile, mail, telephone requests, and inter-library loan, and to display and deliver books in ABE classrooms. The estimated cost for this objective was $1,000, mostly the director's salary for time spent in talking to the school librarians.

OBJECTIVE 14: TO CONSIDER THE PROVISION OF REFERENCE BOOKS IN THE LIBRARY NEEDED BY SMALL BUSINESS AND INDUSTRY WHICH EMPLOY ABE STUDENTS

A quick observation and assessment of the business and industry in Floyd County that would participate and benefit from such a service indicated that the cost of the objective compared to the possible benefits would not be feasible. Little business or industry exists in Floyd County.

OBJECTIVE 15: TO INCREASE ABE STUDENTS' COPING SKILLS

Originally the objective was to develop a coping skills inventory to measure student increase in coping skills by pre- and post-tests. Upon the advice of the consultants brought together by the AAEC for a coping skills conference, it was decided not to attempt to develop this inventory.

An alternate means of determining impact on individuals' coping skills was to add a new objective: the collection of case studies (See Objective 17 and Appendix I.)

One such human interest story involved a woman who had a twelve-year-old son who was mentally and physically handicapped. He could never walk, talk, or sit up, and had the mental ability of a two-year-old. She enrolled in ABE to get her high school diploma. She has developed an interest in working in any activity involved with the handicapped, and came on the bookmobile asking for materials on mental retardation and physical handicaps. When a staff member interviewed her, they found out about her son. After a second interview and a visit to her home to take material that she had requested, the project staff really knew the situation and referred the lady to the nearest place where she could take her son for an examination. She took him, and learned that he had a brain tumor, and was not expected to live very long. Her interest in helping the mentally and physically handicapped is growing, and she continues to use the material we obtain for her on the handicapped and the retarded.

OBJECTIVE 16: THE FIVE ABE PARTTIME STAFF MEMBERS SHALL EACH DEVELOP TWO BOOK REVIEW COMPONENTS BY ABE STUDENTS UNDER SUPERVISION OF ABE TEACHERS. Excerpts from the tapes of these book reviews and student discussions are included as Appendix L. The cost, $2,480, was mostly for salaries.

OBJECTIVE 17: EACH OF THE ABE PARTTIME STAFF WILL MAKE A CASE STUDY OF ABE STUDENTS ENROLLED (MINIMUM OF TWO CASE STUDIES EACH) Case studies are included in this report as Appendix I. Cost: $1,280, mostly staff time spent in collecting information.

PART II. CHANGES MADE AND RECOMMENDATIONS

A. Selection of Staff

The few changes in part-time staff were at the request of the staff members. Those who left the project did so because of other commitments.

B. Training

We feel that additional training would have been beneficial to all staff personnel. All staff members were entering an endeavor with a lack of experience. Several had been involved with adult education before, but not in the capacity that the project involved.

C. Staff Responsibilities

The only changes in staff responsibilities were to meet new objectives recommended by the AAEC.

D. Staff Utilization of Time and Resources

The report on cost estimates reveals that most time and effort were involved in operation of the bookmobile and home visitations. These two objectives were the backbone of the program.

E. Relationship to Local Library Personnel

Local library staff are now aware that a built-in clientele exists at ABE centers, and will continue to reach this clientele through bookmobile and any other methods that are feasible.

F. Relationship to Local ABE Personnel

ABE supervisors and teachers are more aware of services available and of the library's interest in the ABE program.

G. Geographic Scope

The planned original scope covered six counties, but the area was so large that the project changed to cover only Floyd County.

H. Introducing Materials to Learners

Material was introduced to the individual learner on a one-to-one basis. After interests and approximate reading levels were determined, the staff attempted to provide appropriate material for the individual.

I. Locating Sources of Material

All materials selection was based on bibliographies from persons and organizations that have had special programs for adults.

J. Materials Selection Process: Coping Skills, Supplemental, and Instructional

The local library is now aware of the kinds of materials needed, sources for getting those materials, and costs.

K. Ordering Process for Materials

All material was purchased through the Floyd County Board of Education. This allowed for a much larger discount on materials than we could have gotten otherwise.

L. Delivery Systems: Bookmobile, Rotating Collections, Mail

Various delivery systems were developed. Materials were delivered by bookmobile, by the staff, by mail, and by visits to the ABE centers. Our main concern was to deliver by the most expedient method.

M. Advisory Board Function and Membership

Through sound advice from advisory board members, the project staff was able to place proper emphasis on the various objectives. The members were from various elements of society and so the board had a wide range of knowledge.

N. Recruitment

In the final analysis, recruitment had a very important impact on library and bookmobile usage. It is difficult to analyze the result of recruitment on ABE, although we believe that it was beneficial.

O. Relationship with Students

In most cases the students' previous experience with libraries had been during their school years. Their idea of a library meant studying and reports. If this project has changed their idea of libraries and to think of the public library as a source for continuing their education, we have accomplished a great deal.

P. Public Relations and/or Dissemination Activities

Through local radio and newspaper the public was made aware of the project.

Q. Travel

Travel expenses were for the project director. The project director and the bookmobile librarian attended workshops.

R. Orientation of Library and ABE Personnel

Both groups are now more aware of the value of coordinating the two programs, public libraries and adult basic education.

S. Coordination of Services

Coordination has occurred and should be of great value in the future.

T. Relationships of Project Staff

Project staff have developed into an extremely close group. Personal strengths have been shown in different areas and will be valuable to ongoing library and ABE programs.

PART III. QUESTIONNAIRE

A. Service

1. Do you and your staff have examples of ABE curriculum changes brought about by your project?

   The Kentucky State Area Coordinator of Adult Basic Education has requested a packet be prepared to assist teachers and students in getting available materials and services, and on using the library.

2. Can you document a significant increase in library usage by ABE students?

   Yes. Before the Library-ABE Project no library service was provided by bookmobile to the adult education centers.

   Number of adult learners served: 315 students; 450 community

   Materials circulation figures: 4,950

3. Do you feel the accomplishments of the project have been worth the cost, time, and effort?

   The program has had a great impact on a great segment of our society. Complete family units of 765 patrons have become familiar with the public library and the bookmobile. ABE patrons involved, and the public to a greater extent, are now aware of the services and materials available to them at the public library and through bookmobile services. The program has promoted the public library, increased bookmobile circulation, and has had a beneficial impact on the reading habits of a great number of underprivileged persons. We feel that this project has instilled in this segment of society a greater desire to read and to get more education, and that the students will continue to use the services of the public library.

B. Continual Counseling

1. How useful do you and your staff judge the community referral handbook to be?

   It is the opinion of the project staff that the handbook was very valuable to the library-ABE program. Why? Twenty-eight referrals were made, most of them to the Adult NYC Program.

2. What other kinds of counseling problems came up and how did your staff handle them?

   Patrons or their families needed to know if they qualified for rehabilitation in some cases. These individuals were referred to the Kentucky Rehabilitation Centers.

C. Manpower Development

If you had a second orientation session, please indicate:

1. Who was involved: ABE students, ABE teachers, ABE supervisor, library staff, and library-ABE staff
2. Activities: slide-tape presentation, listening to tapes of student book reviews, summarizing the library-ABE project objectives
3. Reactions: more relaxed attitude; no comment on slide-tape presentation; enjoyed book reviews. This information appears on tape and is included in this report.

D. Materials

2. Indicate what traditional and non-traditional methods and techniques in introducing materials to learners were effective and not effective. Why?

   The traditional method of the ABE student using the limited facilities of each adult education center's library or having the ABE teacher choose reading material was immediately obsolete. The students, with suggestions from the bookmobile librarian, pursued their reading interests by choosing reading material from the bookmobile. Therefore, their reading interest level was increased and broadened.

IV. Evaluation of AAEC Services

1. Relevance to........The AAEC Staff provided the expertise and advice needed as our model center was being established.
2. Training......Pre-project training sessions were invaluable.
3. Monitoring Activities.......The orientation session of State and Project staff with ABE teachers was a great asset in achieving enthusiasm and cooperation.

   Ann Hayes, chief project investigator, along with Mr. C. J. Bailey, monitored our activities. Mrs. Hayes visited our model center different times and was in touch, by telephone, constantly.

   It is mainly because of the knowledgable and conscientious AAEC staff at Morehead (Kentucky) State University that we were able to so successfully interrelate the Library and Basic Education Services for the disadvantaged adults of this area.
4. Materials......All necessary materials were available, either from project budget or Kentucky Department of Libraries.
5. Budget......The budget was ample for needed activities and supplies, but additional funds were needed for travel.
6. Relationship......The in-service training sessions were good, especially the workshop in Madison, Wisconsin.

   The exchange from other model centers was very beneficial.

Kentucky--ABE-Library Project

The following is a brief resume expressing the views of the Adult Education Unit, Kentucky Department of Education, concerning the ABE-Library Project conducted in Floyd County, Kentucky, and sponsored by the Appalachian Adult Education Center at Morehead State University.

For the past eight years Floyd County has conducted one of the largest and most progressive Adult Basic Education programs in Eastern Kentucky. During fiscal year 1972-73 this program was expanded in many areas through the use of a federal grant approved under the direction of the Appalachian Adult Education Center (AAEC). Floyd County was one, along with three other sites from the Appalachian area, selected to participate as a demonstration project. The main objective was to find out if the public libraries and Adult Basic Education programs could work together at the state and local levels in providing needed services to adults--ages 16 and over with less than a high school diploma. Several lesser objectives with activities designed to reach those objectives were conducted in the Floyd County project which were useful to the Adult Education program. Some of the activities were as follows:

1) Many adult students were introduced to the public library services for the first time in their lives through the use of a Bookmobile and a visit to the local regional library at Prestonsburg.

2) ABE teachers were helped by the use of the Bookmobile as a delivery system of printed and non-printed materials.

3) A general reading list was provided to the ABE program.

4) Door-to-door visitation to disadvantaged adults to recruit them for ABE programs and to use public libraries was made possible by the use of a Bookmobile and trained staff.

5) ABE staff gave assistance to librarians on reading interests and needs of adult clients.

6) ABE staff provided library orientation and library tasks as a part of the ABE curriculum.

7) ABE staff provided assistance to librarians in determining reading levels of individual students and of materials.

Some direct benefits of this project have been the following:

1) The ABE program has had a slight increase in enrollment this year over previous year.

2) A wider variety of instructional materials have been used by ABE teachers.

3) The holding power of the ABE program is improved.

Should this project be funded to continue for another year there are some other activities, in addition to those accomplished this year, that might be considered. They are:

1) The use of the Bookmobile as a type of mobile mini-lab, with a variety of software programmed materials available to students in an individualized learning situation.

2) The use of trained personnel as home-bound instructors.

3) Space could be made available at the local-regional library in Prestonsburg for either a classroom or mini-learning center.

In addition, some of the useful activities accomplished during the first year of the project should be continued, such as:

1) Bookmobile visits to ABE classes.

2) Library orientation and tasks as part of the ABE curriculum.

3) A visit to the regional library by adults who have never been inside of a library.

Dear Ann:

I am happy that we have had the opportunity to work with you all this past year on the ABE-Library project. It has brought us into contact with many people from within and without Kentucky thus allowing for the exchange of ideas, The Handbook of Community Services was one such idea.

I believed in the potential of the Floyd County ABE-Library project from the very beginning as an LSCA funded project in Lexington has been successful on a smaller scale in providing similar services.

It seems that the Floyd County project has been successful in bringing the two agencies closer together in an effort to provide the ABE students an avenue to continue their education via public library services. I hope that this type of interagency cooperation will spread throughout the state as a result of the workshops planned for the coming fiscal year.

The costs of a demonstration project seem high in comparison to a service project, but if the demonstration project by its nature causes similar services to evolve in other places it is probably justified.

With much hope for the coming year-

Working together,

Mike Averdick
Coordinator of Special Programs

Dear Mrs. Hayes:

We have appreciated so much the bookmobile services to adult basic education classes given in the evening by Mr. Homer Lee Hall as well as the cooperation between the adult education classes and the public library services in Floyd County, made possible by Mr. Roland Jones and his assistants.

We do hope that this project, which has been most successful so far, may continue until sufficient research has been engaged in, and needed information has been culled for future use in other areas of the country.

Most sincerely,

Margaret Willis

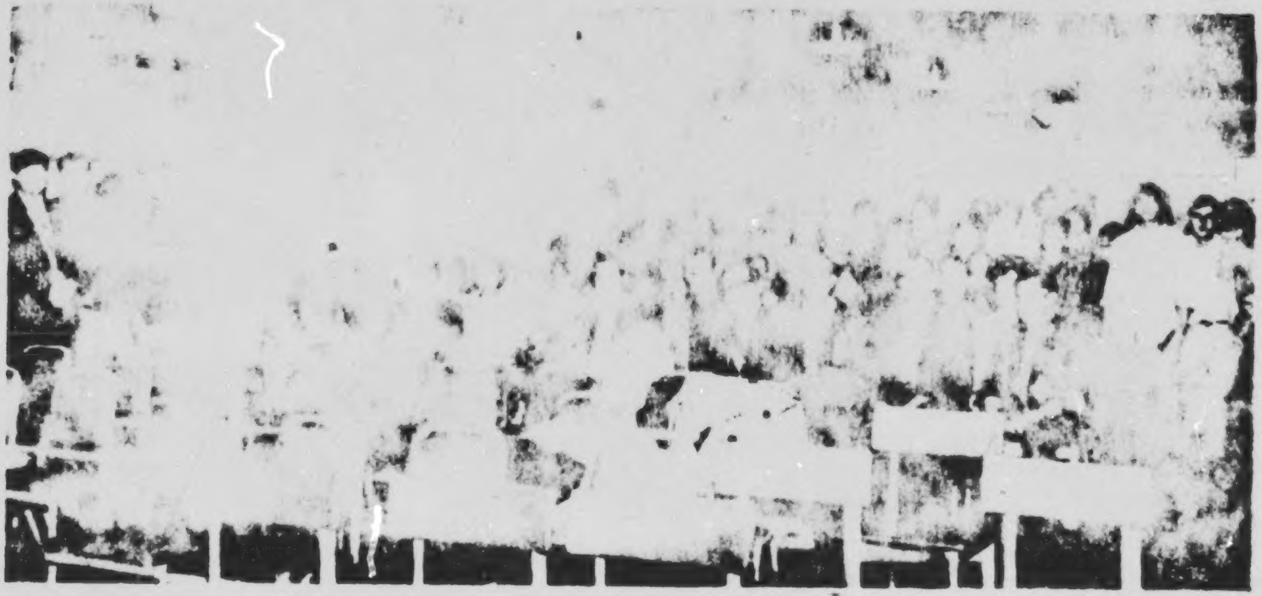
Adult Education Students Briefed At Library Meeting



Adult Education students and teacher at meeting in Floyd County Library.

Upwards of a hundred adult basic education students brought here by bus from different parts of the county got acquainted with the Floyd County Library and its facilities last Thursday when they and their teachers participated in a library orientation session.

The meeting was the result of the ABE (Adult Basic Education)-Library Project currently being conducted in the county. Many of those attending were inside the library here for the first time. The project is a joint effort of the U. S. Office of Education, the U. S. Bureau of Libraries and Learning Resources and the Kentucky Department of Libraries. The Floyd County Board of Education is its sponsor here, and the program is being directed by Roland Jones.

The program will develop the ability of students to use books and the facilities offered by library services.

James Salisbury, Floyd county director of adult education, welcomed the group and presided over introductions. Homer L. Hall, regional librarian, explained the available services and facilities to the group.

Mr. Hall remarked after the meeting that he thought the session had been extremely helpful in making the involved persons aware of what library services are available. He said that, even though Kentucky is recognized as having one of the largest bookmobile fleets in the nation and Floyd county has an excellent bookmobile program, he doesn't want the students to think that the bookmobile is the ultimate in library services.

The interest of the group was excellent, and another session has been tentatively set for the coming spring.

Also attending the group orientation were Roland Jones, ABE-Library Project director, and Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd county schools.

Refreshments were served the entire group by the ABE-Library staff.

COMMENTS FROM ABE STUDENTS AND TEACHERS

Having the opportunity to attend night classes has meant a great deal to me.

I have always realized the importance of a good education and had the desire to complete mine.

It is my opinion that most people want to be self-sufficient and have goals they can fulfill only with an education.

I am very grateful to my teacher, the people working with the bookmobile, and anyone else responsible for giving me this, another chance to further mine.

I want to thank the A.B.E. Library people for getting me to go to Adult Classes. They came to my home and told me about the program and since I have gone back to school, I have applied for my 8th grade diploma. They have helped me get books and things needed to help me learn. I am now working on my high school diploma which I need badly.

STUDENT

The Floyd County Bookmobile Unit is very helpful to the community. Some of the people are unable to visit the library as often as they would like. This way when we want to read a good novel, mystery, or other books, we can check them out from our bookmobile.

The bookmobile always has a large selection of good reading material.

It is very convenient for the night classes which I attend.

I have been exposed to A.B.E. Public Library Project for a short time only, yet I can see many ways in which the project may be of benefit to me.

The bookmobile has had many interesting books and magazines in it which are available to me each time the bookmobile comes to our study center. Many of these magazines would be unavailable to me if not for the bookmobile.

The Library Project helps me also by providing me with materials that will help me with my studies toward passing the G.E.D. Exam. Worksheets, textbooks, and reference books have been made available to each of the students enrolled in the A.B.E. Program.

STUDENT 5

I think that the Library Program and the night classes are a very good idea. I have enjoyed using the bookmobile and I like to go and use the Library at Prestonsburg. I would not have gotten my diploma if it wasn't for night classes. It is easier for me to go to school at night instead of the day. I hope that the library program and night classes will continue.

STUDENT 6

The ABE Public Library Project has benefited me by bringing the library closer and by helping me get ready for the G.E.D. High School Equivalency Test.

It has given me the chance to read some good novels and to learn about some of the best authors.

During this past year, we have visited the Floyd County Library twice and I have learned a lot about how to use the library to the best of my advantage.

STUDENT 7

I have visited the library twice and I enjoyed it so much. The Floyd County Library is so nice and they have a wonderful selection of books to choose from. I like the ones that has the large printing. They are wonderful for the people that eyes are not as good as they once were. I am so glad that we have the bookmobile to come to our Adult Class here at McDowell, which I attend. I can check out books without having to go all the way to Prestonsburg. The only things that I can say that I dislike are the library is too far away from McDowell, and the bookmobile doesn't come often enough.

COMMENTS FROM ABE TEACHERS

From this country's earliest days reading has been a key to survival. Too many students spend 12 years or more in school, yet read at a sixth-grade level or lower.

The perpetual and quite justifiable plaint of the rural people is the lack of library facilities.

The Floyd County Bookmobile Project has been a wonderful help to my adult education students. Teachers don't have to depend entirely on textbooks and basal readers to help students. We might do better to use newspapers, paperbacks, magazines, or a number of other teaching materials and methods which may be found on our bookmobile.

The students feel at ease on the bookmobile because it ensures them a relaxed and informal atmosphere. They feel at home because they know here is a place where they can find a variety of good reading material on their level.

The Bookmobile Project is not only serving the students of my class but the homes of my community.

The A.B.E. Library has been a very important part in the A.B.E. Program in my class at Betsy Layne. It has been helpful in class as well as home study. The people that work with the library have been more than helpful to my class in securing materials they desire and need at school and at home.

I am thankful we have this library, and if we can only educate the people of Floyd County to use this resource, I am sure our educational standard in Floyd County will increase.

The Effectiveness of the ABE Public Library Project

The Library Project has been very successful as an aid to the Adult Education Classes and as a reading material center for the public.

On each of its visits to our Adult Education Center the bookmobile has contained materials that are quite pleasing to our students. They are able to check out books that are interesting to read as well as books that provide vocational and academic information. Any book not available on the bookmobile may be requested form the Regional Library.

In addition to bringing the bookmobile to the study centers, the Library Project has furnished the ABE students with workbooks and worksheets to be used in their studies for the GED Examination.

Another important project was the library visitation program. On two separate occasions the ABE students were transported to the Regional Library at Prestonsburg and while there Library procedures and practices were explained to them so they may feel familiar with the process of finding books and therefore be more inclined to visit the library during their free time.

I feel that the Library Project has been of great importance and assistance to each of the ABE teachers and students.

MARTIN ABE CENTER

Mr. X - ABE Teacher.	The Library Program certainly has been a definite asset to the ABE Classes. All of the students enjoyed the visits to the bookmobile very much. There's much to be said about how the library program helped the ABE Classes. This was the first time that most of my students had ever been to the Regional Library and certainly a memorable experience for them.
Student A.	Mrs. A, what do you think about the library program? I think its a very fine thing. I like to read and wish I had more time to read but I still have to do all the housework first.
Student B.	I enjoyed the visits to the Prestonsburg Library and also liked to visit the bookmobile. It's good that the bookmobile can bring the library materials to the people that otherwise would not have a chance to come in contact with them.

WAYLAND ABE CENTER

Mr. X - ABE Teacher. All of my students have enjoyed the program. They especially liked the visits to the Prestonsburg Regional Library and also the bookmobile visits.

Mrs. Y - ABE Teacher. I think the attitude of many of the ABE students have changed toward the library and the use of library materials. I think they are more relaxed now and don't feel cramped when visiting the bookmobile or library. I think it is a very fine program and that the staff has done a good job in getting the program to the people of the rural areas of Floyd County.

Student A. It's all right, I enjoyed it.

Student B. I liked it, especially the visits to the Prestonsburg Regional Library. I hope we have it again next year and get to go on the trips.

How the A.B.E. Public Library Project has benefited me.

PROS

The ABE Public Library has made teaching basic education much more successful by its use. It has given the students that are unable to get to the public library at Prestonsburg an opportunity to check different books out. It gave the students a better understanding of the value of the library in society. One of the best things that comes to my mind is that the ABE Public Library has created an interest in reading to most of the students. This subject reading is one in basic adult education that we are always trying to improve upon.

I have not only been able to check material out on reading subjects, but subjects that are of interest to these young adults that I have in class. Most of the students are very aware of their future plans, and they are interested in working and finding out more about different vocations. Without the use of the ABE Public Library none of this would not have been possible.

I feel that this program not only has aided me in my teaching of adults, but also has given me a great satisfaction in my reading life. I have been able to find many books on the bookmobile that have interested me very much. I was fascinated at the broad selection of subject matter that was available with the ABE Public Library.

CONS

One of the downfalls to the ABE Public Library was the lack of available bookmobile space which limited to some degree the amount of material available on some subject matter. Although much good material was available, much desired material was eliminated because of the close confines of the bookmobile. This unavailable material could be requested from the central library, however, this practice was time consuming and the materials were often needed immediately.

CASE STUDIES

The following case studies were compiled by aides in fulfillment of objective 17. The names of the ABE students have been changed to protect their privacy.

Ben Taylor was born at Abner, Kentucky, in March, 1956. He didn't realize that the years ahead would be about the same with little education, no skills to work at, and few material things. He had very few things as a child to encourage him to look for a bright future.

Ben was born into a family of poor people. His grandparents were poor and his parents changed little in their life. Neither went to school past early grade school. They were truants themselves in school and this caused them to raise their children in the same despair, with little or no encouragement to get an education.

The family had spent their lives moving from one place to another and dragging the children with them. Ben must have attended at least five different schools in his grade school days. These places were usually in poor surroundings and the same situations prevailed. Ben's father spent most of his time out of work and never worked at one job more than six months at a time. These jobs were usually in mines or on some seasonal job like construction work or picking fruit in southern states. Ben grew up with the idea that he could do the same.

Ben spent most of his school days at the Osborne Grade School when he was in the Wheelwright area. I was a teacher and counselor at this school and had many opportunities to discuss his problems with him and to try to encourage him to get an education and a good job.

Either I did a poor job of counseling him then or the home influence was too strong to tear him away from. Anyway, he quit school in the seventh grade. He did return after a year out of school and made it through the eighth grade. During this last year of school, I helped to get Title I to purchase glasses for Ben because of his severe eye problem. I also talked to him several times after he quit school to get him back to high school but could not.

I took such an interest in Ben because he was intelligent and made good grades. I also knew that the only hope to keep him off welfare was with an education.

Most of his family had been on some welfare program or some monthly check. Ben had seen that they could make it without an education and he was willing to do the same.

Since leaving school, Ben has been working on a garbage truck, making about twenty-five or thirty dollars a week. He seems happy enough doing this and it seemed there was little anyone could do about it.

Ben is handicapped with poor eyesight and ulcers of the stomach. He doesn't or never has had the right foods to keep him healthy.

Ben has been out of school about two years. He got married about four or five months ago to a girl who has lived in the same community and about the same economically, socially, and culturally. He is now married, without a steady job, no education, and not such a bright future.

Ben does have one more chance. When I started working on the ABE Library project as a recruiter, I thought of Ben immediately. When I first talked to him he didn't seem interested. Later, I referred him to the NYC dropout program in which he could work during the day around schools and go to school at night. He could finish his high school education this way and his future could be somewhat brighter.

He and his wife are now attending ABE classes at Melvin and he says he is going to finish his high school and would like to go to Vocational School. He said he would like to be some type of office worker. He seems earnest in his ideas but it remains to be seen whether the strong early environmental influences will pull him back or whether the ABE class and the school environment can lead him to a better life than he has had in his previous sixteen years.

Barbara

On May 1, 1955, Barbara was born to Jim and Molly Smith at Lancer, Kentucky. The first of five children, Barbara had to miss a lot of school because of sickness. So she enrolled in ABE to catch up, and also works as an N.Y.C. worker. Both her parents are unable to work because of physical disabilities, so her job with NYC is their only source of income. After finishing ABE, Barbara should be able to get a good job to support her parents, her brothers and sisters, and herself.

Jenny

Jenny Jenkins was born in 1955 in Barbourville, Kentucky. According to earlier reports, she was a very well behaved child and did well in school. Her father died when she was five, and she was raised by her mother along with three sisters and two brothers. They had to sacrifice quite a bit, but they got along.

Jenny ranked in the top part of her class in almost every area in grade school. She always said that she wanted to go to college or to vocational school when she graduated from high school. She knew it would be hard, but she wanted to do it. She always thought she could do as well as anyone else no matter what the odds. She did have many odds against her. Her mother didn't have much money to send her to school, to buy clothes, supplies, or lunches.

Jenny started to high school, and planned to finish, but in the middle of her freshman year, she married Alvin, who was a sophomore in high school. She got pregnant and had to quit school. Alvin quit too, to get a job to support his wife and child. He found out that this was a big task, being under age and not having a high school diploma. They moved in with Alvin's family, not knowing what they would do later on.

After her baby was born, Jenny heard about the NYC dropout program and applied for work. This allowed her a chance to finish her high school education and make a little money to help her family. It seemed like a long dark path for her to follow but it seemed worth the time and effort to her. She also encouraged Alvin to go back to high school. So she went to ABE and he went back to high school. She worked at a local elementary school, and did well there.

Alvin finally got his high school diploma and Jenny encouraged him to go to vocational school to study electricity. He is now doing well in that program. Jenny herself finished ABE, took the GED test, and got her high school equivalency diploma. She wants to go to vocational school to study cosmetology.

Jenny said she got much more out of the ABE classes than the diploma. She said she learned a great deal about people, and that the library services were very good because they offered her the chance to read about many things that will enrich her life and her family's.

Mrs. Moore

Mrs. Moore is a forty-year old widow who attended the Betsy Lane ABE class for one year, along with her daughter. She had dropped out of school in the eighth grade because of family problems. After her husband died, she began looking for work, and found that she had no salable skills. A friend encouraged her to attend ABE classes and she progressed rapidly. She passed the GED test, and still came to ABE until she enrolled in a business college.

Early in the school year, Mrs. Moore displayed an extreme lack of self-confidence, and it was difficult for her to cope with the class situation. She later explained that her visits to the public library, the bookmobile visits, and the concern shown her by the personnel involved in the library project really helped her overcome this problem.

Mrs. Moore was especially interested in sewing and crocheting. She studied many books selected from the bookmobile and presented her teacher with a beautiful shawl she had made. The class members complimented her on the shawl, which greatly helped her morale.

Mrs. Anderson

Reva Anderson is a 32-year old wife of a disabled miner, and the mother of two sons. She dropped out of school one semester before graduating from high school to get married, and said she "wished a thousand times that she had finished high school." She said she never cared about being a dropout until her husband became disabled, and she had to try to find work without experience, skills, or a high school diploma.

So she came to ABE. When she discovered the project's materials on taking care of the handicapped, she launched an intensive study. She constantly requested books by mail and from the bookmobile on the handicapped, and wants to get into training in care of the handicapped after she gets her high school diploma.

Becky Jones

Becky Jones is a twenty-year old housewife and has one child. She has her high school diploma, but comes to ABE classes because she likes to learn more, and enjoys reading the library project materials. Before she got involved in the Library-ABE project, she thought she was "too dumb" to learn anything or to read anything from the library. But she has changed now. She gives the ABE Library staff credit for guiding her toward the habit of reading. Before the introduction to the library services, her reading was limited to "True Stories" and "True Romance" type magazines. Now she readings light fiction, historical novels, news magazines, and many kinds of books and magazines to help her in her daily life. She recently decided to go into nurse's training.

Patty Gabbard

Patty Gabbard is a thirty-year old widow who dropped out of school in the seventh grade. Now she comes to ABE classes whenever she can, but often she must stay home to take care of her mother, who is an invalid and has to be hospitalized much of the time. Patty's husband died recently after a lingering illness.

Patty came from a very poor family who didn't encourage her to stay in school. Her life has been a continuous series of hardships with constant illness in the family.

When the ABE-Librarian approached her about going to adult classes, she seemed rather despondent because she realized that she needed ABE, but felt so tied down at home that she just couldn't see how she would be able to come. Several neighbors and friends volunteered to take care of her mother while she went to class.

Malcolm Curry

Malcolm is fifty-eight. He started work very young because his father died. He lived in a remote area and couldn't go to school, working at odd jobs, mining, cutting timber, and raising four boys and two girls. Now his family has grown up and moved away.

When we contacted him about coming to ABE, he first said he couldn't learn anything--at fifty-eight, he still could neither read nor write. But he has a good memory and a sharp mind, and worked very hard to learn simple sentences and to write. He's a preacher, and wanted to learn to read some of the Bible and to write his name so he could sign his paycheck.

After a time in ABE, he could write his name and address. One of the greatest joys of his life came when he signed his first time sheet himself, and signed his name on his check (he works as a janitor at the school) to get it cashed. He said, "I wouldn't take a million dollars for what I have learned."

EXCERPTS FROM A TAPE OF ABE STUDENT BOOK REVIEWS AND DISCUSSION

ABE TEACHER: The ABE class and I are going to share with you some of our experiences in relation to the library project we've had this year in Floyd County--what it has meant to us, our appreciation for the people who have worked with us, the people at Morehead for bringing the project to us, and give you some idea of just how much the library can mean to people if they will use it. The scope of our reading has been as varied as the pupils in the class, because we have many different ages, many occupations, many different interests. Our reading has gone all the way from the story of football to the beatinest boys of Jesse Stuart. We have concentrated on Jesse Stuart because we are proud of our mountain heritage and we feel that Mr. Stuart understands the mountains and tells it pretty plainly and we have really enjoyed reading and discussing his works. Some of us have read about flower arranging, especially one lady who works in the florist shop here. And another man who has gone into a small business of his own read all the project materials on small businesses, how to manage them, and so forth, and found it a great help. Many books, many different things. We've also read from magazines, encyclopedias, used the dictionaries in the library and just found that the library has a wealth of material that we never knew it had before. We think this library-ABE project is a good program. Many people have used the library who have not used it before, and others who have used it have found it to have a lot more than they ever dreamed. They have been able to find things to help them in their work, a lot of reading just for pure pleasure, and a lot of things to help them pass their GED examinations. In fact, just in general, we find that this program has been very helpful. Tonight some of the ABE students are going to talk about some of the books and things that they have read from the ABE-library program here.

ABE STUDENT: Well, I think the library is good for everybody. My children use it, they check out books all the time and read them, and I check out books on cooking sometimes and read them. The boys, they like the books on baseball--that encourages them in their ball-playing, and teaches them about the pitches and throws and things like that. And I read a lot of the magazines, Better Homes and Gardens, Glamour, Cosmopolitan, they have a lot of interesting things in them, health, and just everything.

ABE STUDENT: Well, the library has been a big help to myself and my kids. I have two kids, and they both read a lot and enjoy books about animals and wildlife, anything about that and about the old days and something like that. It's really educational and helps them a lot, and I enjoy it. Sometimes we read stories and tell each other stories. I don't know. We all read and enjoy it. We liked The Beatinest Boy by Jesse Stuart. The kids read it and so did I. It's a story about this little boy finding this dog. Then he talks and hunts with it. He lives with his grandmother and he wants to save up enough money to get his grandmother a present, so he plans on selling the possum hides to make the money. He ends up too tenderhearted to kill possums and skin them, so he found out there was an easier way of giving her a present and it means more to him. It doesn't take money always to give somebody a present.

ABE STUDENT: Well, I've used the library quite a bit, and my kids use it. We live quite a ways from the library, and a lot of times the kids can't get it. So they found a lot of things at the bookmobile when it comes around our area, which is quite helpful to them, and I pick up a lot of books at the library and read them. I like the ones about crime and punishment. There's one in particular, I think it's about The Defense Never Rests. It tells of seven different stories, cases he's tried, one I liked in particular was about Sam Shepherd. And another one I was interested in was the Valachi Papers, which is a story about the Mafia, the Cosa Nostra, but the Floyd County Library didn't have it. But the lady at the library, she was getting up to send to the Kentucky State Library at Frankfort, and she got it for me, which I appreciate very much.

ABE STUDENT: Well I've read one book that Jesse Stuart wrote that I liked, Taps for Private Tussy. It told a story about a private in World War II, and I think it is the most down-to-life story I ever read written about anybody in service or about the service. Because Jesse Stuart always had more behind his stories, and he always tells it like it is, just the way we live it. I went to town and got a lot of new documents and read them such as news magazines, Newsweek, which you can get at the library if you can't find them at the drugstore. And I've got teenage kids and it's been a help to them, with their school and their education. The more they can read, it's better for them.

ABE STUDENT: My children, usually when they go to town anymore, they don't head for the drugstore, they head for the library and stay there until it's time for us to pick them up. They get a lot of learning it. I know they're safe and I know where to find them.

ABE STUDENT: The books about flower arranging have helped me in my job. I found different styles than what we're used to at the florist, I find different equipment to work with, and different types of flowers maybe that I can use for gifts, and to work with in the florist, and there is several different types of things that has meant a lot to me.

ABE STUDENT: I like all of Jesse Stuart's books. I think, like you said, he's a down-to-earth writer. When he's writing about the land, you can feel him in the land, you can almost work beside his people that he writes about. You can almost feel them working, they're human beings. And he makes them, well, just a reality...

Dear Dr. Worthington:

At the ceremonies commemorating International Literacy Day at UNESCO on September 8, 1972, the U.S. Acting Permanent Representative to UNESCO, Mr. Rupert Prohme, accepted the award from Director-General Rene Maheu for the literacy work carried on at the Appalachian Adult Education Center. In the announcement of honorable mention of the Center by the jury of the Mohammad Reza Pahlavi Prize the following citation was made:

"The Jury, conscious of the need to reward, make known and encourage the many efforts and activities devoted to literacy teaching which may inspire others and encourage emulation, has decided to award honorable mention to the Appalachian Adult Education Center, United States of America, for its activities as a whole, and more especially for its methodological research and its training of various types of literacy personnel, whose action does not cover only the Appalachians but sometimes extends beyond this region and even beyond the national border."

I am sending the medal and background information about the Pahlavi Prize received by the U.S. representative to you because it seems appropriate that you deliver it to the Appalachian Adult Education Center. We should like you to convey congratulations to the sta of the C artment of State for the hono
